

Library Report Submitted By Miss Wilder

Review Of Last 25 Years Listed

The report of the City Library for 1932, as submitted to the board of trustees by Miss Mary Wilder, librarian, discloses that business at the institution during the year was decidedly on the up-grade.

Miss Wilder's report cannot be better given than in her own words which follow:

"In presenting the fifth-annual report of this library, your librarian takes the opportunity to look back over the twenty-five years, during which it has been a privilege to make this annual survey.

"While this library, in common with others, has known its greatest increase in use during the last two years, the steady and persistent growth during a long period, indicates that the present economic conditions are not wholly responsible for this expansion.

"The report of twenty-five years ago, shows that the library had, at that time, 12,350 volumes, today there are 26,038, an increase of 10 per cent; the circulation of books for the year was 23,282, in 1932, it was 51,179, a gain of 120 per cent. The number of new borrowers, in 1907, was 232; in 1932, 509. Fines and non-resident fees, in 1907, $49.47; in 1932, $258.88.

IMPROVEMENTS VOTED

"The library in 1907 occupied limited quarters, which had become inadequate. It was not until more than ten years later that the library took over the additional space which it now occupies. By this addition, seating capacity of reading and reference rooms, as well as shelf room, was increased. Improvements in lighting and equipment, though acquired slowly, have made possible the service, which the library has been called upon to give.

"The growth of our library shows an average increase of 547 volumes per year; with an average withdrawal of about 200. During the last two years, 629 books have been withdrawn, with a net increase of only 518 per year. During the two years, 11,328 volumes have been mended in the library and 448 rebound.

"Our book supply has been chosen with care; while timely interests have been given attention, purchases of books of an entirely ephemeral character have been few. The policy of the various book committees has been towards the building up of a collection of permanent value. The Marcus A. Brown bequest has been of great benefit in working out this policy.

"A comparison of the number of card holders can not be made as figures for the earlier period are not available. The number of new borrowers, in 1907, 232, of which 173 were juveniles and 59, adults is a basis for comparison with the 509 new registrations in 1932, of which 193 were juveniles and 311 adults. Our new registration, begun in 1929, shows cards have been issued to a number equal to 50 per cent of the population of Circleville. The statistics of circulation confirm the remarkable increase in the number of adult readers.

HOME USE OF BOOKS

"Every month of 1932 was a record breaker in our library statistics. For the first time, the annual circulation passed the 50,000 mark. The increase was again almost entirely among adult readers, though the slight decrease in juvenile readers, noted a few years ago, has been overcome. Younger patrons are again turning to a personal appreciation of the joys of reading, which perhaps, had been somewhat dimmed by an unfortunately depressing affect of some 'required reading.'

"The only falling off in circulation was in the 'rental collection,' from which 2,021 books were issued, a decrease of 664 volumes from the preceding year. As the most of our new fiction is added to the regular collection by transfers from this source, the corresponding loss of revenue is reducing our supply.

"The reading of biography, social science and other classes of non-fiction is becoming more general. In introducing a new patron to the library, a good novel represents the line of least resistance, but a constantly growing number ask first for reading of a more solid character. It is gratifying to know that books, for which there is a waiting list of patrons, represent the highest types of recent publications.

"Too much stress can be laid on a supposed distinction between informational and recreational reading. This depends on the reader. One person may read the library's most scientific book, for recreation, and novels are part of every school and college course in literature and modern languages.

LIBRARY RESOURCES

"The library's book stock now comprises 26,038 volumes. Of these, about 700 are in the regular reference department. The additions, during the year, to this part of the library were 62 volumes, including bound volumes of indexes, to which the library subscribes, year books; several foreign language dictionaries; the new edition of 'The World Book,' and 11 volumes, containing the messages of the presidents from Washington to Theodore Roosevelt.

"Other books, not included among those for general circulation, are rosters of Ohio Soldiers, local histories, genealogical works, among which are sixty volumes composing the permanent loan of Pickaway Plains Chapter, D. A. R. and old and rare books, which have been shelved in close cases, where they can be preserved for their intrinsic value.

"The 86 magazines added, included several received as gifts, and about 80, sent to the binder in 1932 and received too late to be included in the accessions for that year. No magazines were sent to the binder during 1932. The library's splendid collection of bound periodicals is valuable in all classes of reference work, though they are not restricted to use within the library.

"Of the books added to the general and juvenile collections, 123 volumes were transferred from the Rental Collection. This was the smallest number from this source during the last eight years. Other fiction, added during the year included replacements of popular books.

"Our pamphlet collection, or information file, is of growing importance. Several years ago a start was made to properly care for the accumulation of bulletins, pamphlets, clippings, etc., and two filing cabinets were purchased. Since then, three additional sections have been added, one during the last summer.

INDEX NOW ISSUED

"The acquisition of suitable material for this file has been improved during the last year, when through library co-operation, a clearing house was established by the H. W. Wilson Company. An index of available pamphlets, published by commercial and non-commercial organizations is now issued. Through subscriptions to this enterprise, our library now receives much free and inexpensive material.

"Since additional room was provided, our file has been revised, out-of-date material discarded and new added. A list has been kept, which shows that 2,000 subjects are treated by 4,270 pamphlets, 316 leaflets, 816 clippings, and 50 maps in re-arranging and sorting, a few pamphlets, suitable for binding, were placed in pamphlet binders and transferred to the book collection; clippings on holidays, entertainments, etc. were pasted in inexpensive scrapbooks, which are also issued as books.

"Local history scrap books have had many additions during the year, and two new ones have been added. One of these is being used for the 'Did You Know?' column of the Circleville Herald.

"A scrap book of clippings from the genealogical department of the 'Boston Transcript' has been furnished by Mrs. Orion King, who is at work on a second volume.

ART AND MUSIC SERVICE

"While no special effort has been made to develop an art department in our library, all pictures, for which any future use can be anticipated, are saved, and are gradually being made available for loan and reference. A few have been classified and filed in boxes with subject labels, and are also used for storage.

"The library draws on this collection for bulletin board and other displays, some loans are made and our patrons frequently find it useful for reference. A local artist has, during the last year, executed this picture collection in the preparation of a series of illustrations which are appearing in a well known magazine.

"A most valuable gift to the library, during the year, was a framed original plate from 'The Nests and Eggs of the Birds of Ohio,' drawn and colored by Miss N. E. Jones, in 1884. This was the gift of Dr. Howard Jones, who has been an outstanding benefactor of the library.

"The library gives a limited amount of service to the Music Division of the Monday Club and other local musical interests. Increasing demands may soon make the need of systematic development of a music department a part of our program for the future.

"A club program has brought out an interest in the more familiar phases of architecture and material, especially on American architecture, is needed.

"The cultural side of the library grows with the practical and recreational, and in a small community, it is especially necessary for the library in progress with its patron.

LIBRARY ACTIVITIES

"Within the library, no year has brought the library staff in closer contact with the citizens of Circleville. Besides the increase in circulation, with its accompanying additions to book mending, handling and arranging the book stock, and other duties, additional associations came from the mounting number of visitors to reading and reference rooms.

"Special tasks undertaken during the year were revision of the information file, the making of scrap books, and an inventory, supplementary to the one made in 1931. The result shows fewer books missing, or not returned by borrowers, and 15 volumes, previously listed as missing, were found.

"During the year 5,446 books were mended in the library, 189 were rebound, and 194 discarded. Of the books added, 213 replaced or duplicated popular books. The 934 books added to the library required the addition of 1,706 cards to the catalog, representing 673 new titles.

"The largest number of new card-holders, during any one year, were added in 1932. Of the total number, 508, there were 325 adults and 184 juveniles. There were also 285 registrations of old borrowers. The number of card holders recorded in the last four years has been 3,637.

"A number of letters were written in reply to local history and genealogical queries. These included, not only requests for information directed to the library but others to local officials and organizations.

"The Librarian was consulted by the program chairman of several organizations, and took part in the programs of four, also serving on the local Washington Bi-Centennial committee. Miss Warner presided at the District Convention of the Pithian Sisters, held in this city in November.

"Two library meetings, one at Deciley, the other at Columbus, were attended by your Librarian. Miss Warner was also present at the District Meeting held at Boxley in May. At the convention of the Ohio Library Association in Columbus in October, the Circleville library had the largest representation at the Trustee's luncheon, Mr. Groce, Mr. Goeller, Mr. Daley and Miss Moodie, being present. At both of these meetings, library finance and legislation furnished the keynote for the programs.

Owing to what at the present time seems a far-sighted policy, the curtailment of expenditures, during the last two years, leaves the library, at the close of 1932, in better financial condition than other city departments. In spite of increased use by the public, reductions have been made in the number of periodicals received, and books purchased. No repairs or improvements have been made, expenditures for equipment and supplies, have been kept at the minimum; and all other expenses refused. The demands upon the library staff have been met cheerfully, with the hope of a happy solution for the problems of today, and for the future of the library.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

"The changes in our library and its service during the regime of your Librarian have presented a variety of problems, some have been solved, some have ceased to exist, and others, we have always with us. The cooperation of the Board of Trustees, always so necessary, has never been called upon more seriously than during the present period. The manner in which careful and earnest consideration has been given is gratefully acknowledged.

"Local organizations and citizens have shown appreciation of the library's place in the community in many ways. It is not possible to mention all of the encouragement and benefits received. With this report is given our 1932 roll of honor, of those, who, through gifts, and other tangible expressions of interest, have recorded themselves as 'Friends of the library.'

"The response of the library staff and the janitor, to the increase in work and necessary economies, is worthy of comment and expression of appreciation, when no other reward is possible is expected.

"That the members of the Board of Trustees have given wise and disinterested guidance has been especially appreciated during the last year, when their cordial cooperation and friendly council have cleared the atmosphere of many clouds. Respectfully, submitted, MARY WILDER, Librarian

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

"First aid to the library, in bringing its service to the attention of the public, came from the cooperation of the local newspaper. The Circleville Herald has published our reports, book lists, and other news in a manner very gratifying to the management of the library.

"Many local organizations supply the library with the publications of their associations. Ten magazines and papers are received regularly, for which the library is indebted to these societies.

"Among the books added during the year were 100 received as gifts, of books, were those of Miss Flora Dunlap, from the library of her mother, Mrs. Samuel Dunlap, and of Dr. Hartley R. Clarke, who presented a number of valuable reference books.

"Others who have contributed to the library during the year have been The Circleville Publishing Company, Circleville High School, Pickaway W. C. T. U., Monday Club, Rotary Club, Kiwanis, Business and Professional Women's Club, Pickaway Plains Chapter, D. A. R., Norfolk and Western Railway, Railway Express Agency, and the following citizens: Dr. Howard Jones, C. E. Groce, Rev. Toensmeier, J. W. Johnson, Mrs. H. S. Lewis, Mrs. Frances Morris, Evans Mrs. S. Jeanes, Mrs. G. W. Dowler, Mrs. Dora Walden, Mrs. Charles Gerhardt and Mrs. Onon King.

WRITING CAUSED IT!

BOSTON—Some people write so poorly that the letter 'C' was mistaken for a 'B' and for that reason the letters preceding the numerals on Massachusetts' truck registrations were changed from 'B' and 'C' to 'A' and 'B'.

SALT CREEK-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

D. L. Buchanan visited our school last Friday. He especially noticed the Spelling classes of the grades.

Three new pupils were transferred to our school this week: Frances and Carl Hall, who formerly attended Mount St. School in Columbus. Henry Legg came from Franklin St. School, Circleville.

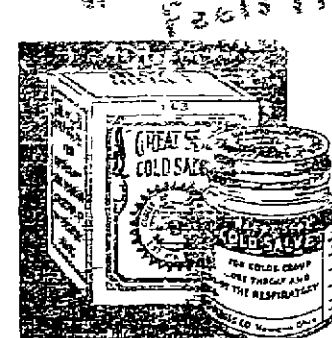

James Hartranft, Harold Horn and Paul Neff, three seniors, finished their High School Basketball career when they played against New Holland, Saturday evening. Our boys were defeated 26-48. James Hartranft scored 13 points for our team, although he was checked by one of the best guards in the county. In the first game in the tournament when our team played Darby, James Hartranft scored 18 points, Merle Hartranft, 12 points, Harold Horn, 6 points, David Kuhn and Paul Neff each 2 points. The three graduating seniors will be greatly missed when the season rolls around again. The teams wish to thank Coach Miller for his efforts to help us during the past year.

A Body Builder

WHEN you feel rundown, when your blood is thin or your stomach gives trouble, with gas, or "acid" risings, try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you are thin-blooded, need to put on healthy flesh, this is the tonic for you. Chas. Stuebel, 209 Sandusky St., Sandusky, Ohio, says: "I save the Golden Medical Discovery to my son who had lost much weight, had no ambition, felt tired and had no much appetite. After he had taken two bottles there was a big improvement and he was soon back to normal health. So I'd by druggists everywhere. Write to Dr. Pierce's, Chicago, Buffalo, N. What! No Panacea?

JOHN W. DAVIS, invited to become one of 250 "doctors" to diagnose our economic ills and prescribe a cure, declined the invitation, saying:
"As the depression is not due to any single cause, unless it be human folly I am sure it cannot be cured by any single remedy. I have long since ceased to believe in governmental miracles or legislative cure-alls. To my mind the most helpful thing congress can do is to devote itself to the obvious things that lie close at hand, trusting the future for further panaceas."

There goes another grandiose scheme. Had the one-time candidate for president desired to be made candid he might have added that 250 "great men" will not get any farther toward a solution of the problem than 250 unknowns from the shops and offices of the country. There has already been enough of grabbing.

It takes an expert to solve problems involving four variables, yet congress without an expert on its roster presumes to solve a problem involving 123,000,000 variables.

"Why does congress play at working out the big puzzle it knows because its poor powers and neglect the obvious things that lie close at hand?" It is, perhaps, because the latter involve some work and no little political annoyance?

Mass production is not a failure. The Reno divorce business increased 10.6 per cent in the last 12 months.

Careless of the Truth

ALL men are liars. Not conscious liars, in the sense that their talk and their treatment of issues daily falls short of the exalted ideal of truthfulness that does not admit partial, distorted or exaggerated reports.

"The most difficult thing in the world is to recognize a fact when it is a fact and to state a fact truthfully. It is not an easy thing to state a fact clearly. To state it clearly is even harder."

The unconscious liar has inaccurate powers of comprehension or inadequate powers of expression, or both. His morals are not at fault. His mind is very like a window which distorts the landscape.

Everybody is acquainted with one or more of his kind. Political campaigns turn the spotlight upon them. The unconscious liar talking politics will condemn the enemy for being careless with the truth and in the next breath will misquote, misinterpret and misstate every utterance and policy of the other camp.

Professional lobbyists are often unconscious liars. If not conscious liars, it is a habit they form in their zeal for making out a good case for their cause. Truth is of interest to them only when it serves their uses. Half truths and untruths they will cite as truths when it serves their purpose. And irresponsible legislators accept it all as gospel truth.

The town cynic says if wishes were horses, they would be in the way.

There still seems to be enough to maintain the highway congestion.

DARBY-SCHOOL NEWS

The attendance the past few weeks has been rather low in the lower grades due to an epidemic of measles. The attendance flag was won last month by Miss Skinner's room at Era with a percentage of 98.

The girls were defeated in their tournament game with Walnut by the score 18-14. The boys lost to Salt Creek 40-29. The girls play Jackson this Friday night for third place.

Both basketball teams have made records the past season that have never been equaled by any Darby teams in the past. The girls played 13 games during the season and lost only to Scioto Monroe and Madison Mills one game each. The boys won seven of the 13 games played. The tournament games are not included in this statement.

The report cards will be given out next Wednesday and will show the grades for the fourth six-weeks period. If some of the grades are not satisfactory, parents and teachers should confer and try to remedy the trouble before it is too late.

SYNOPSIS

In the year 1690, when piracy was rampant on the Spanish Main, Priscilla Harradine sailed from the West Indies bound for England aboard the "Centaur." She is accompanied by middle-aged Major Sands, the aide of her late father who had been Captain-General of the Leeward Isles. The Major aims to win Priscilla's hand and fortune. Monsieur Charles de Bernis, former lieutenant of the notorious buccaneer, Henry Morgan, is aboard. The Major, feeling superior to the young Frenchman, is hostile toward de Bernis, but Priscilla is fascinated by the latter's charm and wit. Morgan now is Governor of Jamaica, and employed by his King to rid the sea of pirates. A few still elude him—among them the scoundrel Tom Leach, for whose capture Morgan has posted a reward. Major Sands upbraids de Bernis calling him a pirate, and adding that Morgan and his cutthroats were just bloodthirsty, thieving scoundrels. De Bernis nonchalantly accepts this tirade of abuse. Next morning, Tom Leach, on his ship "The Black Swan," engages the "Centaur" in combat and captures her, killing all hands on deck. In the cabin, de Bernis cautions the Major and Priscilla against denying anything he says as their lives may depend on it.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

The cabin door was flung violently inward upon its hinges, to crash against a bulkhead. Through the dark gap swarmed a little mob of half-naked men, most of them with gauntly swathed heads, their sunburned, bearded faces alight with evil exultation. They came with weapons in their hands and foulness on their lips.

Beholding the four tenants of the cabin—for Pierre stood in the background, simulating impassivity, despite a greyness spread over his deep tan—the ruffians checked a moment. Then one of them, at sight of the girl, loosed a hideous yell, and on that they were surging forward again, when Monsieur de Bernis, calm to the point of seeming contemptuous, put himself in their way.

His hands were on the silver-mounted butts of the pistols in his stole; but the fact that he did not trouble to draw them lent him an added authority.

"Hold! I'll burn the brains of the first man who advances farther, I am de Bernis. Fetch your Captain Leach to me."

Whether because they knew the name of this man who once had sailed with Morgan, a name which he announced in a tone to imply its high significance, or whether because his very manner, so cool and assured, had an intimidating effect upon them, those evil ruffians stood arrested, at gaze, their leader bawling a blood-stained machete in his powerful hand. Thus, whilst a man might have counted ten. Then, as they were beginning to mutter, lewdly decked demands that this man who stood so boldly before them should explain himself, a fellow of middle height, whose body and movements held something of the lithe strength of the panther, came thrusting through them to the front. It was Tom Leach.

He was breached in red, and his blood-smear'd shirt hung open from neck to waist, the sleeves rolled high to display the powerful muscles of his long hairy arms. Black curls clustered about a low, animal brow, his nose, a thin, cruel beak was set close between a pair of quick-moving eyes that were almost black. Instead of the cutlass or machete more generally favoured on boarding occasions by such men, Leach was armed with a rapier, a weapon with which to his abiding pride he was accounted of a deadly skill.

"What the devil's here?" he cried, as he advanced.

But when he stood clear and slightly ahead of that press of scoundrels, he checked as they had done before the elegant, commanding figure, so straight and tall that was confronting him. In his coppery face the little eyes flashed as if in surprise, and then narrowed like a cat's. He caught his breath for an ejaculation.

"May I be sunk into everlasting fire if it isn't Top-gallant Charley!" And he added a foul oath in token of his profound amazement.

Monsieur de Bernis took a step forward. He removed a hand from a pistol-butt, and proffered it.

"Well met, my friend. You were always to be found where you were wanted. But never more opportune than now. You come to save me trouble. You arrive just as I am on my way to seek you. On my way to Guadeloupe, for a ship and men to sail to find you. And behold, Tom! You have the complacency to drop from the skies to our deck. C'est charmant!"

With eyes still narrowed, his attitude slightly crouching, as if his muscles were gathered for a spring, the ruffian disregarded the proffered hand.

"Will ye cozen me, de Bernis? There was always a sly rogue, there was. But not sly enough for Tom Leach."

Born on the banks of the Lune, which he had quitted so as to follow a calling on the seas, which he had originally intended should be honest, his speech retained the broad burr of the north country, just as his nature retained its dour mistrustfulness. "I last heard tell of ye w' Morgan Morgan's right-hand man ye was when ye quit th' Brotherhood of th' Coast, along of that treacherous turncoat."

Monsieur de Bernis displayed the mild amusement he might bestow upon absurdity. "Of course, I was given to choose," he said with irony. "A fine choice: between that and execution dock. As long as I was in Morgan's hands, I had to dance to the tune he piped. But you know nothing of de Bernis if you supposed his heart was in the fig. I took my first chance to slip away and join you. And behold me."

"To join me? To join me, d'ye say? I never knew as ye loved me."

"We always love those we need. And, faith, I need you. And I don't come empty-handed. You're the only leader left with men enough and spirit enough for the enterprise I'm set on. I bring you fortune, Tom. Fortune such as ye may have met in dreams, but never waking. Something better than poor merchantmen like this, with paltry cargoes of hides and logwood, over which the French traders at Guadeloupe or Sainte Croix will impudently swindle you."

Leach advanced a step, holding his rapier, like a whip, in his two hands at the end of his lowered arms. "What's th' enterprise?"

"A plate fleet, Tom. No less to sail in a month from now."

There was the faintest kindling of interest tempering the mistrust in those watchful little eyes. "Sailing whence?"

The Frenchman laughed, and shook his head. "Nay, now. We'll leave that till later."

Leach understood. But his lips tightened. "I'll need to know more of this or ever I sign aught to it."

"Of course you shall know more. Enough to make you sharp-set."

The pirate's view of Miss Priscilla, partly screened hitherto by the bulk of Major Sands, happened to be left clear at that moment by a movement of the majors' legs, eyes quickened.

"Who be these? Who be th' doxy?" He would have advanced, but de Bernis stood resolutely in his way.

"My wife and her brother, I was taking them to Guadeloupe, to await there my return."

The foolish Major cleared his throat to repudiate a relationship which offended him. But Priscilla, intuitively guessing the mad intention, warned him against it by a violent clutch upon his arm.

"Your wife?" The pirate's manner was a trifle daunted. His glance turned sour. "I never heard tell you was married."

"It happened lately, in Jamaica. Airily de Bernis dismissed the matter. 'It's not important, Tom. We have this other business to settle now that we are met, so oddly opportune.'"

Tom Leach considered him. "It'll need a deal to make me believe you're honest, de Bernis. And if find ye're not..."

De Bernis interrupted him. "Suspicion makes you stupid, Tom. I was always the flaw in your nature. What manner of fool must I be not to be honest with you when I'm in your hands?"

Still considering him, Leach stroked his thin nose. "Maybe. Maybe. But, by heaven, Charley, if these looks to get spry w' me, the'll end by wishing the'd ne'er been born. D'ye call to mind Jack Clavering? He was just such an other dawcock as thee, Charles, and thought he could make a fool of Tom Leach. Ye may ha' heard tell how I plucked his feathers, until the poor fool screamed to be let die. Thee's clever, Charley. Morgan always reckoned thee was clever. Artful as Old Nick himself. But it's artful, too. The'd best remember it."

"Ye're wasting breath," said de Bernis contemptuously.

"Maybe. An' I've ways of wasting other men's, too."

Nevertheless, his resolve was taken, as he now showed. Abruptly he turned upon the ruffians waiting like hounds in leash behind him.

"Away w' ye all. All but you, Wogan. And tell Mike to go through th' cargo so as he'll report to me when I come up."

They went out noisily. Leach watched them depart, then he advanced to the table, pulled out a chair and sat down, laying his slim sword on the board before him. "Now, Charley. Ye'll hear more of this plate fleet of yours." Yet as he spoke it was not at de Bernis that he looked, but at Miss Priscilla over by the stern-locker with the Major; and his glance was neither nice nor reassuring.

Behind him stood Wogan, the buccaneer with the machete, who had led the invasion of the cabin; a tall, powerful, flat-featured scoundrel, black-bearded, with greasy black curls fringing the red scarf about his head and the bluest of eyes under thick black brows. He wore a gaping red shirt and loose breeches of rawhide, in the belt of which he carried a brace of pistols.

Monsieur de Bernis, entirely at his ease, moving with the authority of a man in his own house, went to open the door of one of the starboard cabins.

"Come, Priscilla," he said quietly. "And you, too, Bart."

Instantly, and in relief, she moved to obey him.

Tom Leach stared annoyance and grumbled. "What's this? Who says they shouldn't stay here?"

"By your leave, Captain," was all that de Bernis answered him, with a chill dignity that seemed to exclude all argument. He held the door for his supposed wife and brother-in-law; and he closed it after they had passed out.

Pellagra Is Disease of Summer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A GREAT deal has been written concerning the various forms of treatment for pellagra, but very little in regard to its prevention. Yet you will agree with me, of course, that the prevention of disease is far more important than its cure. Keeping well is better than getting well.

Pellagra is a disease involving the skin, stomach, intestines and nervous system. It can be traced to the prolonged diet lacking in certain substances. The disease usually makes its appearance during the summer months but undoubtedly it can be traced to the diet of the preceding winter.

For many years this disease bewildered the medical profession. Since it first involves the skin, it was looked upon as a disease of the skin and spoken of as a form of "dermatitis."

At one time pellagra was believed to be an infectious disease. When we learned about vitamins and came to have a better understanding of nutrition, it was determined that pellagra is a "vitamin deficiency disease." By this I mean that pellagra, like scurvy, rickets and other similar diseases, follows the eating of food lacking in certain essential ingredients.

The skin symptoms of this disease are quite marked. There is first a reddish discoloration of the skin. This is followed by scaling and peeling of the affected areas. The face, neck and hands are most commonly involved. The skin itches, burns, is tender and usually swells.

Sufferers from pellagra have marked nervous symptoms. These may lead to melancholia, with hallucinations stupor and convulsions. As would be expected, the victim of this disease complains of swollen and bleeding gums, increased salivation and a persistent diarrhea.

Due to Wrong Kind of Food

Contrary to the common belief, pellagra is a disease that it is man's disease. In most instances, it is true, lack of food can be traced to a lack of funds. But many cases are due to the wrong kind of food and not to the lack of food.

Vitamin G is the one that prevents pellagra is not exclusively a poor food in a variety of foods accessible to all. For example, it is found in large quantities in fresh lean meats, liver, milk, canned salmon, and wheat germ. In smaller quantities, it is found in eggs, dried beans and peas, canned spinach and canned string beans. Vitamin G is found in very small quantities in corn products, wheat and rye flour, oatmeal, salt pork, lard, carrots and rice.

From what I have said you will not question that the prevention of disease is often difficult to achieve and frequently it undermines the general health of the afflicted person.

Answers to Health Queries

S G T Q.—What would cause a pain on the right side a little below the hip? Would dancing or swimming cause further trouble or aggravation?

A.—It would be rather difficult to say without making examination. Do not overdo or overexert until the cause of the trouble has been located. Make sure there is no tendency to re-rupture.

Troop 158

At last Boy Scout Troop 158 has a permanent home furnished by the American Legion who are from henceforth going to be their big brothers and lend a helping hand. They are going to help put Troop 158 on the map.

The troop met at its new meeting place, Memorial Hall, Monday night at 7.30 p. m. The meeting was called to order by Assistant Scoutmaster Harry Butler. After playing a few games the boys, according to class, gathered in groups and received scout instruction. Following this the boys gathered in their patrols and conducted their business and gave patrol yells. The entire group then gathered in the circle and sang a number of Scout songs. Immediately afterwards the boys joined hands in a friendship circle and were dismissed by Harry Butler repeating the Scout prayer.

As this was the last meeting for Scoutmaster L. D. Young and Assistant Scoutmaster Harry Butler, Mr. Young made a sort of farewell speech in which he thanked the boys for their cooperation with him since organizing the troop almost two years ago. He then introduced the new Scoutmaster, William Betts Jr., and Assistant Scoutmaster Paul Betz. They were both given a hearty hand. The new Scoutmaster gave a little speech telling the boys how the Legion had come to back them and what it was going to do to help the troop. Then the Assistant Scoutmaster told of the possibilities that were before the troop, he

As the sincere sweetheart who attempts to induce the girl to send two young boys, left to her care, to a boarding school, Dunn is said to give his best performance since the unforgettable "Bad Girl." Boots Malloy, making her first debut, plays the role of the struggling shop girl. What El Brendel does and what he fails to do, which provides material for the comedy situations in this romantic

BIG 10 TITLE LOOMS AS OHIO STATE WINS

Buckeyes Come From Behind To Beat Iowa; Northwestern Loses.

With eight straight victories to its credit in the Western conference basketball race, Ohio State University today stood on the threshold of the conference championship. The Buckeyes last night defeated the Iowa quintet, 38 to 23, as 16 conference teams went into action.

Ohio State protected its undefeated conference record by overcoming a 14 to 13 lead which Iowa held at the second half began. With a shuffled lineup later in the second half the Buckeyes broke a tie at 21 and went on to a victory which ended Iowa's winning streak of six victories in a row.

Although Purdue overcame a 10 point lead in the second half to defeat Northwestern 42 to 40 last night at Lafayette, Northwestern retained its slim hold on second place.

Michigan won its sixth victory, 35 to 10, with Chicago as its victim, thus the Wolverines are but a step behind Northwestern in the conference standing.

Illinois got away to an early lead over Wisconsin's quietest at Madison, held it throughout, and whipped the Badgers by a 29 to 19 margin. The Illini led 13 to 6 at half-time.

At Minneapolis Indiana's team handed Minnesota its ninth defeat, 36 to 25.

FINAL NIGHT PRICE LOWER

Announcement was made Tuesday from the office of the superintendent of county schools that the price of admission to final games of the county tournament Saturday night has been reduced from 50 cents to 40 cents.

Price Connell, Darby-two superintendent who is in charge of tournament arrangements, called H. R. Townsend, state athletic commissioner, and received permission to reduce the price.

Many persons have objected to the price of 50 cents and have urged that a lower price be set. The price for the Friday night games remains at 25 cents.

OTTERBEIN WINS

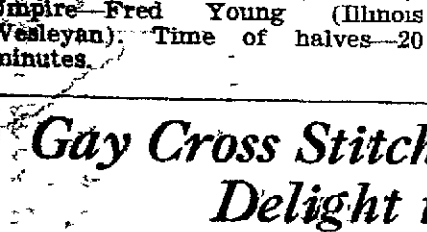

WESTERVILLE, Feb. 21.—Otterbein's basketball team trampled Muskingum 56 to 19 here last night to win its ninth straight Ohio conference victory of the season. The Cardinals were never threatened during the game. At the half the score stood 28 to 12. Barney Francis, Otterbein's forward, led the scoring with 18 points.

Gay Cross Stitch Motifs Delight to Home-Makers

All true home makers like cross stitch embroidery and it is for all of you that the patterns as shown in the accompanying illustration have been made.

On this section that are 12 different cross stitch designs, and this is only one-half of one of the large sheets included in The Herald Wonder Package of 12 sheets, each measuring 24 by 36 inches.

Three beautiful borders are here shown, the wide ones being very appropriate for towels, scarves, bed-spreads, pillow cases or any one of a great number of things that only the home makers who love to see their homes most attractive can imagine.

To give you some idea of the sizes of these motifs: for example, the pot of flowers measures seven by seven and one-half inches over all. This is most attractive in the corner of a bridge table cover or breakfast cloth. The roses could be made tint of red with green leaves and pot of either black or brown.

The narrow border at bottom is just the right size for guest towels while the large borders are three inches wide.

A TOWEL IDEA
You might hemstitch by hand a narrow hem across each end of towel and then in the center of one end near the border you could have a cross stitch rose bud such as is shown near lower part of flower pot. Two of these could be worked in an evening and if you are home all day there is no reason for not having a good supply of bridge prizes and gifts ready long before time for their presentation.

The little cross stitch boat could be used for many baby things, such as towels, bibs, etc., and the other small motifs will suggest themselves for a great many uses. At the upper left of the pot of flowers is a small rose spray that would make very effective tray cloths, the edges are decorated with the narrow border at the bottom and fringed. Fringe, as you know, is very popular and is a rapid way of finishing luncheon sets, tray cloths, towels, etc.

These patterns are the easiest to transfer of any you have ever heard of only requiring a little water and slight rubbing with a silver spoon.

HOW TO OBTAIN PATTERNS
Just think of all you get for $1.00 if you mail the coupon (or 88c if you will call for them), over 800 transfer patterns which can be used many times. 475 initials of many styles and kinds. You cannot afford to be without this Wonder Package, for in it you get a lifetime supply of patterns for sewing and painting. Watch this item for notes of the many uses of these motifs.

If you care to call for The Herald Wonder Package, it may be had at The Herald office or its mail.

The enclosed please find $1.00 for which I wish you would send me the Wonder Package of over 800 transfer patterns.

Cardinal Team Bars Pennant Path In National League Street Claims

Street's Selections For 1933 Pennant

JOPLIN, Mo. Feb. 21.—Here's how Gabby Street believes the 1933 National League race will finish.

St. Louis Cardinals
Pittsburgh Pirates
Chicago Cubs
Philadelphia Phils.
Brooklyn Dodgers
Boston Braves
New York Giants
Cincinnati Reds.

CONNELL OBTAINS PERMISSION FROM TOWNSEND TO REDUCE TOURNEY COST.

Announcement was made Tuesday from the office of the superintendent of county schools that the price of admission to final games of the county tournament Saturday night has been reduced from 50 cents to 40 cents.

Price Connell, Darby-two superintendent who is in charge of tournament arrangements, called H. R. Townsend, state athletic commissioner, and received permission to reduce the price.

Many persons have objected to the price of 50 cents and have urged that a lower price be set. The price for the Friday night games remains at 25 cents.

So far as outfielders and pitchers are concerned, the Cardinals are overburdened, Street says. The best of the pitching staff are Hal-laran, Derringer, Dean, Carleton, Haines, Stout, Landsey, Mooney, Walker and Vance.

Boston will be better this year with the addition of Shanty Hogan the Cubs will benefit by the addition of Babe Herman, Bottomley and Hafez will make Cincinnati dangerous, and the New York Giants will finish no better than sixth or seventh place.

JOPLIN, Mo. Feb. 21.—The other clubs of the National League have a chance of winning the pennant this year but the team they will have to beat is the St. Louis Cardinals.

Thus speaketh Gabby Street, the old "Sarge," manager of the Red Birds, and quite some shucks as a prognosticator of National League flag races at his home here. He has a grand average of .667 in the guess-as-guess-can business, having picked his club in 1930, 1931 and 1932. Last year the guess wasn't so good.

"Let the club bat 290 as a team, let the defense come through as it should, and with the Cardinals' pitching—why they can't keep us out!" says Gabby.

Pittsburgh will be the club to beat for the title, Street believes. "Pittsburgh is a well-balanced club with better than fair pitching. The addition of Freddy Linstrom should make the Pirates a powerful contender, stronger than the re-inforced Philles, stronger than the champion Cubs."

The regular Cardinal lineup for 1933 is uncited. Street advises all this will be worked out in the training camp. With Bottomley gone to Cincinnati the first base position will be a fight between Rip Collins and Pat Crawford.

Second base will be unfilled until Rogers Hornsby proves that he can fill the bill. Shortstop? Take your choice of Charley Wilson, Sparky Adams or Charley Gelbert.

For third base, Frankie Frisch, who, Street opines, is the greatest all-around player in either league today.

Italian Air Fleet Set for Hop to Chicago

Eighty Men in Twenty-four Seaplanes, Led by Air Minister Italo Balbo, Will Fly Atlantic to Bring Country's Good-Will to Chicago Exposition.

TYPE OF PLANE TO BE USED IN FLIGHT

ROUTE OF MASS FORMATION FLIGHT TO CHICAGO

If present plans are adhered to, a great Italian air armada of 24 seaplanes will take off from Ortebello, Italy, on May 24, the anniversary of Italy's entry into the World War, for a flight across the Atlantic, its ultimate goal the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition. Under the direction of General Italo Balbo, youthful Air Minister, plans have been prepared for the most ambitious venture in the history of aviation. General Balbo himself will lead the flight, as he led the previous mass flight from Rome to Brazil in December, 1930. The planes to be used will be of the type employed in the Brazil flight. Each craft carries two pilots, a mechanic and a radio operator. The seaplanes, designed as bombers, have a large cargo capacity which, in war-time, would be used for carrying explosives but in this instance will be utilized for carrying extra fuel. The probable route of the armada will be by way of England, Iceland, Greenland, Newfoundland and New York, then, by way of the Great Lakes, to Chicago. The same thoroughness that marked General Balbo's mass formation flight of eleven planes to Brazil is being displayed in this more ambitious venture. For some months past, Italian air officers have been making observations on climatic conditions over the North Atlantic, so that nothing may be left to chance in insuring the success of the flight with the maximum amount of safety.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

A PROBLEM is facing Al Kauber, Ashville high school basketball coach, this week that few mentors would care to face.

That is "How shall I have my team stop the pivot plays employed by the New Holland basketball team?"

The Ashville boys, victorious in both of their tournament games, meet New Holland Friday night in the first semi-final contest and the game should be an interesting one.

New Holland, by virtue of its season record and its play in the tournament to date, is favored by many to "take" the Ashville entrant but Kauber and his crew have different ideas about the thing.

Interrogated what defense he planned to use against the pivot plays taught by Warren Hobbie, Kauber replied he had a defense worked out but as far as reciting details he answered that New Holland's team would be the first to learn what they are.

NOT only must Ashville dope a defense but New Holland must, too, for Kauber uses a pivot man, Otis Ford, who is difficult to handle because of his size.

It is probable that Hobbie will play Pete Davis on the Ashville center while Joe Louis will probably endeavor to "stick" Wink Wellington.

King Carol's Throne Wobbles, Family to Request Abdication

Lupescu—Depression—Communism and Army Discontent Over Pay Result in Decision to Seek Regency with Prince Michael as Monarch.

MME LUPESCU MARSHAL AVERESCU

In a desperate attempt to stem the growing unrest in Rumania, members of the royal family have decided to ask King Carol to abdicate his throne in favor of his son, Prince Michael, according to reports going the rounds of Bucharest. The rumored decision is said to have been made at a conference in which the Dowager Queen Marie, Princess Ileana, her husband, Archduke Anton, and the King and Queen of Yugoslavia participated. The conference is believed to have been the result of a recent piece of plain speaking by the veteran Marshal Alex Averescu, who commands the Rumanian Army. The Marshal, in complaining of the non-payment of his soldiers, drew a parallel between King Carol and a former ruler of Rumania, Prince Alexander Cuza, who lost his throne by a popular revolution in 1886. Prince Cuza, according to the general, was a gay blade, more devoted to wine, women and song than to affairs of State, and he suffered the penalty. Although Marshal Averescu did not mention Carol by name, his hearers interpreted his remarks as an allusion to the King's liaison with Mme. Magda Lupescu, for whom Carol renounced his royal birthright, but later repented. The red-haired beauty returned to Rumania soon after Carol remounted the throne and was installed in a palatial villa near the capital. The Lupescu affair, combined with labor troubles, the depression and the growth of Communism seems to be making Carol's place on the throne insecure. The action of his family in seeking to place Prince Michael in his father's place is believed to be the only way in which the dynasty can be saved.

Tinkling Bells, and the clink of silver

In a Chinese fairy story one reads about the Emperor's garden, where rare and colorful plants from all over the world were constantly flowering.

It was the duty of the honorable head gardener to watch for the most beautiful of the blooms and tie to the stem of each a little silver bell. As the flowers swayed in the breeze, the bells tinkled with sweet music. Thus the courtiers and the distinguished visitors, strolling along the paths, were sure to see the finest specimens.

This was the Emperor's way of saying "I have something extra fine that you should see: look this way and you'll be repaid."

In the advertising columns of this paper are similar messages addressed to You. Read them and you will hear the clink of silver. Our merchants are saying "We have some extra values. We have some especially seasonable articles that you should see. Come to our stores and you will be repaid."

You have nothing to lose when you accept this invitation. In fact, when you fail to do so, you're missing some of the very news for which you bought this paper!

Monday Club Enjoys Social Session; Minstrel Is Success

The Circleville Monday club convened Monday evening in session extraordinary in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church. The occasion was the annual dinner and social meeting of the club. After a delicious dinner served by the women's society of the church, the club enjoyed a short recess while the entertainers of the evening under the able direction of Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, Mrs. Charles May and Mrs. Clark Hinkicker got into costume for their act.

The swelling notes of "Dixie" lifted the curtain on a semi-circle of black face comedians and their interlocutor, all in full evening dress with brilliantly striped trousers. The cast which follows, included some of the club's already well known comedians and also introduced several actors, heretofore unknown, whose performance indicated outstanding talent and great future accomplishment.

Mrs. Harry Lewis portrayed Mr. Little, the interlocutor, and the end of the act included Miss Sadie Brunner, Miss Sam Butler, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Miss Threlkeld, Miss Marion Miller, Miss Mary Hader, Miss Dink, the chorus was composed of Miss Emily Yates, Miss Lillian Gossling, Mrs. Charles May, Mrs. Clark Hinkicker, Mrs. D. Phillips Snowball, Miss Mary Rooney, Little Black Sam, Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Jr., Miss Mose Taylor, Mrs. Robert Lilly, Brother Viney.

The program opened with some twenty verses of "He Sat Down Under the Apple Tree and Played His Guitar" sung by Little Black Sambo with interpretive gestures and able assistance of the chorus. Hink proved himself a born song and dance artist in two "hot numbers," "How Come You Do Me Lark, You Do, Do, Do" and "Dat's What Ah Calls 'Ballin' Jack."

Brother Viney, although suffering a terrific throat cold, favored the audience with two numbers, "Old Kitchen Kettle" and the difficult "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." An embarrassing accident to his costume prevented the completion of the last number.

Next came "Here It's Monday and I Still Have a Dollar," by Miss Hink.

Brother Crawford displayed diversity of talent by the touching rendition of the ballad "I Can't Believe It's True" followed by the "Highland Fling" with tambourine and piano accompaniment.

The diminutive artist Dink in "Go On, Mule" showed notable ability as a buck and wing dancer.

One of the high points in the performance was the masterly rendition of "On the Garden Wall" or "Meow" by Miss Threlkeld. The splendid voice, imposing presence and perfect enunciation of this artist merited the numerous curtain calls and the floral tribute which he received.

Little Mose Taylor in "Louisiana Hayride" sang, danced and directed his chorus with true plantation abandon.

Snowball in "Pink Elephants" gave a warning to all inebriates. Mr. Butler sang "Little German Band" with the able assistance of Messrs. Hink, Taylor and Viney as the band.

Mr. Little, a most dignified and imposing interlocutor, showed latent ability as a crooner in "The Girl in the Little Green Hat." He handled his end men with efficiency, never faltering in repartee, although at times hard put to it to answer the clever conundrums asked him.

Great credit is due Mrs. Theodore Huston and her one man orchestra which supplied the musical background for the show.

Altogether, it was grand entertainment and the Monday Club's only regret is that the public were unable to enjoy it with them.

During dinner Mrs. Howard Jones presented to the club two books which she has compiled containing all the programs of the club from its beginning and many other memorabilia of its past activities. These books are to be put in the keeping of Miss Mary Wilder, the club librarian, to be added to from time to time.

A most welcome guest was Mrs. Thompson B. Wright of Pasadena, Cal., a charter member of the Monday club.

ENTERTAIN BRIDGE CLUB MEMBERS

Mrs. Margaret Mills entertained with two tables of bridge at her home on E. High-st., Monday evening. Guests were members of her bridge club, and Misses Ruth Stout, Margaret Brennen and Lucile Crist.

A pleasant evening was spent at the card tables and was brought to a close by the serving of a delicious lunch. Favors in the bridge game went to Miss Stout and Miss Elizabeth Helweggen.

In two weeks the club will meet with Miss Lucile Neuding, E. Main-st.

Milady Spring Millinery

Just as sure a harbinger of Spring as the first robin is milady's untiring interest in new millinery at this time of the year. Here are four of the chapeaux shown at the recent fashion show in New York, which promise to be popular this coming season. At upper left is Dorothy Smith in a creation of printed crepe in red and white; lower left is Madeleine Masia in a black straw, with a Rhumba band; upper right Julia O'Sullivan displays a soft black straw for dinner wear, and, lower right, Lucile Upton shows a red felt with a patent leather band.

An interesting bridge game was in progress at two tables at the home of Mrs. C. G. Chalfin, E. Main-st., Monday evening, when she entertained the members of her club and two guests, Mrs. Melvin Mettler and Mrs. Robert Wolf.

When tallies were added at the close of play honors went to Mrs. Charles Fellers, Mrs. John Carle and Miss Nellie Riffle. Tempting refreshments were served at the small tables after the game. In two weeks Mrs. John Carle, W. Main-st., will entertain the club.

tion for ratification. Senator Harold G. Mouser (D) of Cleveland, has introduced a bill calling for election of all delegates at-large. The day's object on the belief that such a plan would be a severe blow to their chances.

Despite the excitement over prohibition repeal, wet chiefs in the state legislature estimated that Ohio cannot possibly have legalized hard liquor for at least two or three years.

A foaming eight-ounce glass of beer may be possible within three or four weeks, but not whiskey.

TWO STEPS NEEDED

To repeal liquor laws in Ohio, two steps are necessary. First, the state prohibition amendment must be repealed through a state referendum, and secondly, the proposed new 21st federal amendment, killing the present 18th amendment, must be ratified by a state convention.

Opening the spigot for beer in Ohio would be easy in comparison. Should Congress modify the Volstead act after President-Elect Roosevelt takes office March 4 to permit beer, Ohio would need only to amend its Miller and Crabbe acts to conform.

would be left in home school districts where collected; the remainder would be distributed among school districts of the state from the state-aid fund.

A husband and wife would be allowed only one $1,500 exemption by Gunsett. Recipients of U. S. pensions would escape payment on the amount of their pensions. Collections would be started by county auditors before Feb. 1, 1934. Returns would be due within 40 days after expiration of the taxable year.

A companion bill will be introduced later by Gunsett to double the present rates on intangible taxes. This is a second part of the "sock-the-rich" campaign.

"I consider this the only way to place the tax where it belongs — on the people who have money," Gunsett declared in explaining his bill.

WETS, DRYS

served notice of a fight to the bitter end.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, declared the whole strength of that organization would be thrown against repeal.

Belief was expressed that in most states drys would join with wets for the holding of conventions so that the question can be decided.

Chairman Sumners (D) of Texas of the House judiciary committee, for years a dry, announced that the committee would hold hearings Thursday on a plan to speed a decision.

He proposed in a bill that the states hold conventions under uniform regulations provided by Congress. The committee also will consider the bill of Rep. LaGuardia (R) of New York to have the federal government call and appropriate $7,500,000 to pay for the elections.

OPPOSE LAGUARDIA

Constitutional lawyers divided on the question of federal supervision. Rep. Beck (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican "wet bloc" said he would fight to the limit any plan for federal supervision.

Many members from southern states, fearful of an attempt by Congress to fix the qualifications of voters, also opposed the LaGuardia plan.

The anti-prohibition leaders were confident that 36 of the 48 states would ratify the repealing amendment within the seven-year limit.

The drys were equally confident they can halt repeal by preventing ratification in 13 southern and western agricultural states.

While the wets pointed to the election of last November, the drys, such as Mrs. Margaret C. Munns, treasurer of the national W.C.T.U., ascribed the urge for repeal to "depression hysteria."

Wets recalled last November such rock-ribbed dry states as Washington, Oregon, Arizona and North Dakota voted against prohibition.

The House vote showed only 30 states giving a majority for prohibition, but it was pointed out that 67 "Lame Ducks" cast dry votes yesterday. Most of these will be replaced by wets after March 4.

SPEAKER ASKS MAJOR BATTLE

other groups have their lobbyists in the halls of the state house seeking to protect their interest, and they usually do, but who is there to champion the cause of the welfare department. Every group puts its fingers into the pie and what is left goes to welfare. As a result there usually isn't any left and the welfare department is hit by a reduced appropriation.

"Many of our institutions, Athens, state hospital, Orient feeble-minded institute, Columbus state hospital, Gallipolis hospital for the epileptic and others are so badly over-crowded that we must file names of our patients with the various institutions in an effort to get them in for treatment. Some times it would require a long while before a single patient can be sent away," Judge Fenton said.

Active support for a sterilization bill now in the Legislature was urged by the speaker who recalled many instances where this measure could and should be used to advantage. He cited one case in a southern Ohio county where 241 feeble-minded persons were traced in one family. "Had the first member of this family been sterilized when it was learned he was feeble-minded these people might now be of assistance to their community instead of a detriment and an expense."

Probate Judge Charles C. Young, Meeker Terwilliger and Sam Waldron, the latter of Chillicothe, were guests of the club.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—American officials today turned apprehensive eyes towards the Chinese province of Jehol, former playground of the Manchurian emperors, where it is feared a major conflict is about to commence between China and Japan that may set the entire Far East aflame.

The situation is regarded as having reached the most critical stage since the invasion of Manchuria by Japan's armies in September, 1931.

There was a belief in some quarters that Japan might adopt the time set for the convening of the league assembly in Geneva today as the zero hour for launching the offensive against Jehol.

Have you contracted the latest craze — jigg-saw puzzle? Evidently A. G. has it for he was in our store the other evening and said that he wanted a folding table on which to work out jigg-saw puzzles. He said that he wanted "just a cheap one." However, when he saw one of that kind, he decided that he wanted a better one — one that was more solid. And now, A. G. has a GOOD folding table. It has stability due to double-bracing on each leg. We'll wager that he is burning mid-night oil putting those little pieces into their proper places. Wouldn't it be a shame to have a wobbly table collapse just when you had your puzzle just about completed? Don't take a chance, but drop in and get yourself a GOOD table. You'll find more uses for one of these handy tables than the mere playing of games and puzzles.

Did you ever see the coal-burning Heatrola range? If you haven't, you've a treat in store. It's made by the makers of the famous Heatrola heaters and is of the same high-grade construction and beauty? It's enameled all over in a beautiful Ivory enamel and has a top that will not burn red. It's one of the cleverest ranges for country folks that we have ever seen and the price is only $77.50. Of course, we have cheaper ranges on the floor, but the Heatrola range is one of the better ones. Be sure to see it.

That's only one way that it can be used. If you wish, you can make it into a double bed instead. And in the day-time, it folds up and makes a comfortable and good looking davenport. Handy? Just as much as a pocket in a shirt. Comfortable as a bed? With small coil springs in the mattresses, it can't be otherwise. To appreciate it you should see it.

How'd you like for folks to tramp upon your face? Yet that is what happens to the "face" of your floor-coverings. For that reason, care should be used in selecting a rug of a good quality — the kind that we sell, for instance. When you tread upon the "face" of our rugs, they look right back at you and smile, and keep smiling for years. Yes, and you'll feel good, too, when you find what a high-quality rug can be purchased for such a reasonable price.
